

For the builders and developers of a new eco-friendly residential housing project, in Seattle, WA, April was supposed to be a month of progress. Instead, however, anarchist arsonists have hindered their work through a deliberately set fire, which gutted the work-in-progress, ruining the hard effort that the builders had put in so-far. The fire, which is under investigation by the Seattle Police Department's Arson Unit, has been estimated to cost over $30,000 dollars.

Following the incident, a web posting, published on the Puget Sound Anarchists website, had claimed responsibility. Although this acknowledgement of guilt was posted – it was signed anonymously, and as of this publication, there have been no further leads, or information. If you have any information regarding this arson, which was set shortly before 12:30 AM on February 26th, in the Seattle district of Judkins Park –Please contact National Tipster @ 877-95ARSON (877-952-7766).
